Journal Article

- Soncin, M., Bowers, A.J., Agasisti, T. (2025). A Global Perspective on School Leadership: Evidence from a Latent Class Analysis on OECD TALIS Data. Educational Management, Administration and Leadership. 53(6), 1577-1602.
<https://doi.org/10.1177/17411432241231902>

- Previous research highlighted the existence of multiple educational leadership styles; however, evidence on their multidimensional application is limited. The current study defines an innovative cross-national classification for school leaders along the two dimensions of instructional and distributed leadership. As implications for leadership policy and practice, the cross-country prevalence of integrating leaders might increase the level of organizational complexity, while the geographical distribution of leadership classes highlights the important role played by cultural aspects in influencing leadership practices.

Report Publication

- Bowers, A. J., Choi, Y., Huan, Y., Huang, Y., Jiang, J., Cibrian Lopez, G., Murdoch, A., Pu, K., Sill, M., Williams, J., Wu, Y. S., Xu, G., Saldaña, C., & Halverson, R. (2025). Mapping Public Open Access K-12 State Education Indicator Data Across 7 States and Washington, D.C. Using the FAIR Data Principles. Teachers College, Columbia University. <https://doi.org/10.7916/c0jk-5e64>
- The purpose of this report is to map the landscape of thousands of publicly accessible PK-12 school datasets from seven U.S. states and Washington, D.C. to the National Academies of Sciences, Engineering, and Medicine (NASEM) framework of 16 indicators for schools and districts, including California, Kentucky, Maryland, North Carolina, Ohio, Oregon, and Texas. Consistent with NASEM (2019, 2020), the team extends the focus on outcome data (such as test scores and graduation rates) to include a wide range of opportunity and resource data. This report provides both a replicable methodological framework and a practical resource for researchers, policymakers, and educators seeking to navigate public education data for decision-making focused on opportunities and achievement for all students.

Rajashi Ghosh

Journal Article

- Montgomery, A., & Ghosh, R. (2026). Navigating academia as immigrant women: a duoethnographic inquiry into barriers, belonging, and becoming. Journal for Multicultural Education, 1-14.
- This study challenges traditional narratives on diversity in academia by illustrating a nuanced understanding of the barriers immigrant women face, which are often overlooked in broader gender equity discussions. By including the perspective of a White immigrant, this study expands the discourse on immigrant identity, highlighting how racial privilege intersects with cultural displacement in ways that are rarely addressed in immigration studies. Duoethnography captures raw, reflexive and deeply personal insights that quantitative studies or standard interviews fail to uncover, making visible the complexities of both racialized and non-racialized immigrant experiences in academia. <https://www.emerald.com/jme/article-abstract/doi/10.1108/JME-04-2025-0081/1334161/Navigating-academia-as-immigrant-women-a?redirectedFrom=fulltext>
